COMMITTEE IMPLICATED BY DOUGLAS. Swimmer Says E. H. Goffe, Jr., Agreed to the Proposition That the Game Should Not Be Played on Its Merits-Previous Championship Game Said to Have Been Thrown. The particulars of the fake water polo game for the metropolitan championship between the New York A. C. and Knickerbocker A. C. last March, published in The Sun of yesterday, caused quite a sensation in athletic circles. The two organizations have been such bitter rivals for years that many men found it hard to lieve that they would come to such an agreeent, especially in a championship contest. was carried our also came in for considerable comment, as an apparently more spirited game was never played, and the spectators went nearly wild when Wenck scored the goal for the New Yorks which practically put the double

Dr. W. G. Normandie Murray, one of the candidates for the place, was under suspension by the A. A. U. for swimming in an unregistered contest and was only remastated a few days before the game. The other man available was Don M. Reeder, however, had just previously sent in his resignation to the New York A. C. and it was understood that he was going over to the Knicker-bockers, where his brother Harry was a member, and the centre on the "therry Diamond" team. The end of it was that Reeder reconsidered his resignation and at the last minute was selected to play central instead of Murray, ite did not show his seall speed, and when he reached the ball first almost invariably numbled and lost possession of it. His play came in for considerable adverse criticism at the time and it now transpires that members

C. intimated that Reeder had thrown the game. D. M. Reeder afterward joined the Knickerbocker A. C. and now competes under the colors of that organization.

With regard to the later scandal Douglas explained his own connection with it and the causes that led to his trouble with the Athletic Committee to a reporter of The Sty. He said that when the season began the New York A. C. team was entirely disorganized, and while the early practice was going on he had no idea of playing on the team, but when doing any work in the tank signed his tickets for the bath accommodation as a regular member and the same were charged to his account. About three weeks before the date of the national championship at Boston Mr. Goffe, we to him in the bililiard room and asked him if he would be chairman of the Swimming Committee. Douglas accepted and Mr. Goffe hand od him some letters relating to the duties of that committee. Mr. Goffe now denies that Mr. Goffe asked several persons promment in athletics as to the qualification of Douglas for the position.

The team went to Boston and was beaten by 5 goals to 0 by the Knickerbockers, who could have won by even a greater margin. The New York boys were disheartened and In the presence of the Knickerbockers men expressed their determination not to play in New York. In the night of the game the two teams got together. Some of the New York players unted to be allowed to make a goal, but the Knickerbockers oblected, as they had not been scored against and did not want to spoil that record. It was finally agreed that the score should be 2 to 0 in favor of the "Cherry Diamond" team. Douglas says that before the game began Fred J. Wells, an old member of the New York A. C. team, said to himself and Capt Johnson. How are you going to get on against the Knickerbockers? They beat you badly at Boston." And that the swimmers told him in reply that they would not be beaten badly that night as they had arranged to play an easy renly that they would not be beaten badly that night as they had arranged to play an easy game. In spite of this Wells officiated and atterward brought the circumstances to the notice of the Athletic Committee.

At the meeting of the committee Douglas states that the chairman of the Athletic Committee denied statements attributed to him and shifted all the blame to Douglas and Johnson, the captain of the team. This inconsed the swimmer, who attemuted to carry the matter over the heads of the committee.

There was considerable discussion yesterday as to whether the men who played in the game would come under the ban of the A. A. U. for not playing on their merits. It was conceded that when the referee was told that the New York team had agreed not to score he should have stopped the game, as he has that power under the rules. Secretary Sullivan said yesterday that he had not closely considered the matter, but knew of no rule that exactly fitted the case. The matter, however, rests with the Registration Committee.

brunt of the blame for the unsavory incident, The same is true of Stillman at tackle, a strong made some startling statements yesterday, which in a measure implicates R. H. Goffe, Jr., chairmun of the Athletic Committee, in the transaction. The young swimmer and all around athlete was at first reluctant to relate his side of the story of the quarrel between himself and the Athletic Committee, which has now developed into a personal fight of the most virile character. Even when he consented to talk on the matter he did not attempt to justify the action of the team in consenting to play a losing game, but shifted the responsibility from the members of the team by instinction of the team by instinction of the team by instinction on the ends at New Haven is perhaps one that bothers the coaches most. It is surmised that Harvard and Princeton are planning to direct frequent attacks at the Yale ends. Give us Campbell on one end and Gouid on the other and I wouldn't care how strong the were.

one official of the game was also cognizant of that fact before play began, but still consented to act in an official capacity. Douglas also states that he has been unjustly treated by the At letic Committee.

Another disclosure made by the water polyphayer in his defence relates to the game between the two organizations eighteen months ago for the national championship, and is even more startling in character than the incidents of the game last March. On that occasion both teams had trained faithfully for the contest, were in excellent condition and each contest of the Madison average organization sent over a commissioner to the New York A. C. buses on the Sunday prior to the game and at the finish practically bet the winged foot supporters to a standstill. The only doubtful possition on the New York A. C. team was centre.

On Monday the Carlisle Indians visited Baltimore and easily crushed the University of Maryland by a score of 27 to 0. The Indians, who vanquished the strong University of Virginia eleven on Saturday, played invincible football, most of their gains being the result of brilliant end runs. The Baltimore students were so completely outplayed that their captain left the game at the end of the first half, declaring that his men were not playing the game of which they were capable. The Indians play University of Pennsylvania, Yule, Harvard and Columbia in rapid succession this fall and Coach Warner, formerly Cornell's star guard, says the Red Skins will make the fur fly again.

Football practice is being continued regularly at Ohio Fleid by the New York University football squad. Next Saturday the team will line up at the home grounds in an easy game with St. Stephens. The hardest game of the year will be that with the West Point cadets on Oct. 31. Coach Hatch has moved the men around during this week's practice off-side play in the scrimmage when the scrub kicked the ball.

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 15.—Harvard had a most welcome addition to her football squad this afternoon in the person of "Buster" Barnett, centre rush on last year's 'Varsity eleven. He has been on probution and seemed a hopeless case, but in the examinations of the past week he came off so well that his probation was cosed and he is now able to play football again. Never was a man more needed. Roberts, who was tried at c nire on Monday, was relegated to the substitute eleven again to-day. The coachers found that he had so many faults and such vital ones that it would be next to thorossible to get him into shape this year. Owing to the large number of injuries to members of the eleven the team was much changed.

EASTON, Oct. 16.—La Tayette footballers closed the gates to-day to the athletic grounds and had two bours of secret practice. The men were in fine form, and coach Newton says they are coming along finely. Princeton will be here Saturday and the greatest game Lafayette has ever placed on the home grounds is expected. It will be her first hard game of the season.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 16.—Frank Butterworth joined the Yale football faculty this afternoon. He had only seen the team at work once before this fall. He was not much pleased with the practice. The practice this afternoon was very hard considering that Yale has a game to play to morrow with Boxedon.

NEWS OF THE WHEELMEN. A. C. C. of L. I. Denounces Endurance Rides -Miss Gast Still at It.

has put itself on record as being opposed to the long distance road rides that have been made from time to time on Long Island. This was done at the regular meeting of the organization on Monday night at Bader's, on the Coney Island Boulevard. Twenty-two clubs were represented. The action was taken only after an interesting discussion on the propriety of it. The author of the resolution remained anonymous, it being read by the Secretary. In its original form it specified condemnation of long rides by women at Valley Stream on the ground of their being detrimental to health and morals. This was objected to as being directed against Miss Gast and too personal. It was also argued that the associthe other day and this was his impression:

"There has been some conjecture as to whether the bulk of the Yale linemen would of twenty centuries was one that should not be permit of the requisite activity. A glance censored by a large body of representative over the men does not reveal any cause for cyclists, but commended on the ground of being uneasiness on this score. It was recommended that an appeal to the Nistae Legislature was the only proper procedure. The resolution was amended so as to eliminate the special reference to Miss Gast and an appeal made that the resolution having been before the organization is would go on record as practically approving of such performances if it was not adopted of the work of the process of the was not adopted of the work of the w

Not content with having beaten all men's and women's records. Margaret Gast rested only eight hours, sleeping four, after finishing 2,000 miles, and set forth at 305 o'clock yesterday morning to advance her record up to the 2,500 mile notch. She completed 2,100 miles at one minute after moon yesterday, which gave her a total of 239 hours 6'4 minutes for the distance. The last twenty-five miles of the 2,100 were ridden in 1 hour and 1s minutes, former Deputy Fire Chief J. M. Cadwell and Lai Rusch making the pace on a tandem. Shortly after 5 o'clock she was caught in the storm, but managed to make her hotel with 2,175 miles to her credit. She then laid off for several hours, waiting for the storm to subside, as she had until midnight, according to schedule, to make the remaining twenty-five miles of her twenty-second century. At the end of her 2,100 miles Miss Gast was riding strong and looking well, not worse than many riders look after a double century.

those who are encouraging Miss Gast is that the law does not cover her case and this is borne out by the opinion of a local lawyer. The statute known as the anti-six-day-bloyele-racing law was passed in 1899. It was almed specifically at the 142-hour races held at Madison Square Garden. It says that no racer shall ride more than twelve hours in the twenty-four in a contest. The point taken is that the ride of 250 hours and more being made by Miss Gast is not a contest, but an exhibition, or a voluntary road ride, in which she does not play the part of a competitor. It is further argued that if the twelve-hour law was made to apply to road riding of this kind it would bar even double centuries and would interfere with the personal right of any tourist or drummer making a trip through the State to push on for a day and a night for any purpose however urgent.

A call has been issued for a meeting to-mor-row night at 102 Fulton street, Brooklyn, for the purpose of forming an automobile club. The preliminary plan of the new organization indicates concention in the work of the Goo-Ronds Association and a possible affiliation with the Automobile Club of America. -

Two new policeman have been detailed to the bike squad in Brooklyn and the force is to remain on wheel duty all winter. The squad in the borough beyond the Bridge now numbers twenty-six patrolman and two roundsmen, and there are four men on the cycle paths.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Jimmy Michael, the fa-mous Welsh "Rare bit," rode an exhibition mile n 1:40 here last night, a new indoor record.

REV. ALEXIS JEFFRIES HERE. Father of Champion Puglist Not Opposed to Fighting as a Business.

The Rev. Alexis Jeffries, father of the champion heavyweight pugilist, is in town and is the guest of his son, who is filling an engagement in Brooklyn with his show, the "Man From the West." This is Mr. Jeffries's first visit to the metropolis. He is a strong, robust man, and | J. while not as tall as the champion he resembles him in build and activity. Mr. Jeffries wears a full beard and is about 80 years old. When asked what he thought of prizefighting he

"It is not so bad as it is painted. My boy has taken it up as a profession, and I guess that since he has made a success of it I have no objection. Of course, there is a wide difference between preaching from the pulpit an' exchanging knocks in the ring. Still, I see no aversion to it so long as the person who has Hammek taken it up is honest, fearless and God fearing. I have often prayed that my boy should be defeated: now it is just the reverse. I want to see him retain his laurels, and I guess he is able and husky enough to do so. He is a dutiful see him retain his laurels, and I guess he is able and husky enough to do so. He is a dutiful loving so . He has not forgotten his parents in the height of his success, and he has been anoty rewarded by the Lord.

"While in Chicago I saw several glove contests and they impressed me as being very exciting. Of course, it is not proper for me to approve of puglism, still I enloyed the sport. Nobody was hurt and no commandments were broken. One thing I trust is that my son will fight honestly now that he is determined to stick to the profession. I am sure he will never do anything wrong. He is too good a boy for that. Nature has gifted him with a good physique and health. He does not drink to excess, and to sum it all up he loves his parents. So what more can a father wish for?"

"Do you think your son can beat any man in the business?" was asked.

"Yes. I do," was the reply. "He is a fine boxer and so long as he takes care of himself I do not see why he should not stay on top."

Mr Jeffries will remain here for about a week. It is his intention to visit Paris. He has also made plans to go to Jerusalem. It is the ambition of his life, he says, to visit the Holy City. He has seen his son act and is much impressed with his histrionic ability. The champion said yesterday:

"I am prepared to fight any man in the world with the exception of Corbett or McCoy. They must show me that they are on the level first before I will fight or notice them. I think that Gus Ruhlin is the best man in the ring, next to myself, and if I should ever get licked I would be pleased if he were the man to do the trick. I am going to do all in my power to induce Fitzsimmons to fight me. I think that their will bring him to time. I am informed that there will be boxing in the city again after the election, but I don't know whether the big fellows will be allowed to meet."

ACTION ON CHALLENGE TO-NIGHT. Said to Be Reasonable.

meeting of the New York Yacht Club has been called for 9 o'clock, when the challenge will be read and action taken. It is understood that the challenge is a simple one. Sir Thomas Lipton asks for no concessions over which there will probably be accepted at once. The members of the club realize that Sir Thomas's prospects for "lifting" the Cup are better than last year and everything will be done in time to keep the trophy in this country. When the Shamrock came here she was practically an untried boat. She had sailed two races against the Britannia, but that boat had long before lost her usefulness as a racer and the Crials were worth very little. This year Sir Thomas Lipton has a trial boat in the Shamrock and it is said that he will bring her across the ocean in order that the new yacht may be properly timed up here before the races for the Cup tuned up here before the races for the Cup begin.

On this side a new yacht will be built, but who will give the order is as yet unknown. C. Oliver feelin has stated that he will not have charge of any more Cup defenders. He thinks that having been successful three times, with the Vigilant, Defender and Columbia, he is entitled to a rest. It may be though, that he will take the Columbia and sail her as a trial boat to get the new yacht in shape for the international contest. With Mr. Iselin in charge of the Columbia the new yacht would have to show her bost speed in order to beat the champlon of last year.

Sir Thomas Lipton has asked that the races show her best speed in order to beat the champion of last very.

Sir Thomas Lipton has asked that the races be sailed in August, which is two months earlier than those last year. Work on the new yacht, therefore, will have to begin much earlier than it did on the Columbia. The construction of the champion was begun in January. The lead keel was cast on Jan. 24. The first frame was set on the keel on Feb. 20, and the first piece of plating was rivetted on March 11. The plating was finished on May 10 and the yacht was launched on June 10. The Vigilant was launched on June 10. The Vigilant was launched on June 14 and the Defender took her first plunge into the water on June 29.

E. A. Willard, who had charge of the Vigilant when the Defender raced against that yacht to get into shape, talked to a reporter of The Sun yesterday about the challenge. He said:

"I think that we have the hardest task on our hands we have ever had. The two types have been getting nearer and nearer together and this year, unless one designer wakes a break, the two boats will resemble each other very much. It will be largely a question of management and if, as has been reported, Sir Thomas Lipton has induced William Jamieson to take charge of his boat you can rest assured that the Shanrock will be in good hands. Mr. Jamieson is so etimes called Wicked Willie on the other side, but from all that I have seen and heard he is every inch a sportenian and the best amateur sailor in foreign waters. He will take all that he can get when sailing a race, but will stop at the line. I think that if he has agreed to come over with the Shanrock he is stif-fied that that boat has a good chaics. This year Sir Thomas Litton has a good trial boat in the Shanrock which, it is said, he will bring over to help tune the new yacht up. That is a wise move. We don't know how good the Shanrock which, it is said, he will bring over to help tune the new yacht up. That is a wise move. We don't know how good the Shanrock will not be made."

Barker, the American champion, was continued this afternoon and evening at the American House. Two games were played and both resulted in draws. Barker opened the first game with the Edinburgh, a 9-13 move, but Jordan's reply, although slightly advantageous, was not strong enough to give him a victory. The game lasted three hours and thirty minutes and the pieces were so placed then that nothing was possible but a drawn game. In the evening Jordan also opened with the Edinburgh, by the terms of the match, and again the game resulted in a draw after three hours' play.
